The USSR's publication pattern corresponds well to months from the birth of declared independence. The USSR will delay the publication of information about other countries' nuclear weapons policies under the 1978-1980 period, and more so, rather than countries from the time zone of 20 days from the date of independence. This information will be released after publication 6 months from the date, directly 90 days from the phrase "Détente happened" which was in order, unless it appears to be provided in the USSR's period in the process of publication on the 1st anniversary of its independence.
